Love him at his worse... was the slogan that most women went by, but what happens when the tables are turned and Cupid shoots the MAN in the heart. Powerful and Passive Malachi Morgan finds his hands full and his heart thumping erratically for a certain someone, but Jade Williams doesn't feel the same. In fact, she refuses to acknowledge his role in her life.

Malachi Morgan is that man. He's the one that everyone has no choice but to love because he's so charming. However, not Jade Williams, she could care less what he has and where he comes from.

Jade Williams is battling demons that she can't cast no matter how hard she tries. Sunken in depression and drowned in her own misery, Jade lives a pitiful life and she has grown to accept it. Blaming her future on her past, Jade is stagnant, but Malachi Morgan is the opposite. His life is just starting. Retiring from The Underworld at the age of twenty-five is considered an accomplishment in the streets, and he is prepared to live a new life. Unfortunately, it won't be with his baby mama.

Aaliyah is considered a mistake, but Malachi can never find the words to tell her that. In an attempt to raise his child better than he was raised, Malachi plays house. However, this doesn't last too long. Somehow Malachi peels the layers that conceals Jade's true identity and he is willing to drop it all to be with her, including his family in New York.

Whenever they warm up, Jade goes cold again. Malachi can't seem to keep her feelings consistent for him. What started off as an innocent business deal turns into a steamy, yet drawn out whirlwind of a relationship.

Malachi refuses to play hide and seek with Jade's heart, but she just won't compromise. In Please Catch my Soul, Jade and Malachi are in constant battle for happiness and love. Jade seeks peace more than anything, and on many occasions Malachi comes to her rescue. When it's all said and done the only thing she really wants is for him to save her from a life of misery that has caused her such a broken heart. .
