Certainly few subjects more interesting or important can be proposed to the Archaeological Society of a county than its dialect. For if Archaeology be, as I presume it is, the science of unwritten history, having for its main object the interpretation of the past and that not so much through doubtful and often legendary documents, but rather by means of material records having for its object in that way the interpretation of the past it must necessarily find in language some of the richest materials for its purpose. This is now pretty generally understood, and Philology is beginning to assume its true position as the indispensable handmaid of History. Within a comparatively recent period we have seen one of its greatest triumphs, the early history of a great and famous people wholly re-written through its instrumentality.
